Specialist five day course designed to equip all children's pastors, care workers, foster parents, parents, school teachers, chaplains, and counsellors. A course vital for all children's ministry team members.

School of Children's Counselling
In-depth teaching on counselling children

This specialist five day course is designed to equip children's pastors, care workers, parents, foster parents, school teachers and those in ministry to children. We train Christian workers to be professional in their approach to dealing with all children's needs. Children are developing in body, mind, soul and spirit! Christians will then effectively nurture the spiritual while helping children as they try to cope with school, friends, family and life's challenges.

Presented by David Goodwin the course looks at skills and techniques of counselling children. The course covers major issues related to counselling children who suffer from grief, neglect, abuse and trauma. It encompasses the whole counselling process including: the counselling relationship, listening skills, counselling techniques and bringing counselling to a conclusion.

See details of the closest School of Counselling to you.

Delegates can apply to come to just day one of the course: An Introduction to Counselling - where many of the concepts and ideas will be introduced. The remaining days of the course will cover the subjects and counselling process in detail.

A certificate of attendance will be presented to attendees of the course. There will be an option available for those who want to gain more benefit by doing assignments which brings the level of study up to Diploma or Bachelors level. More details are on the course outline which is available on request.

David Goodwin is a counsellor, pastor, author and trainer. David has a Diploma in Ministry, Diploma in Counselling as well as a Certificate IV in Assessment and Workplace Training.
