Dr Annette Hannah

APPROACH

Annette Hannah through her work on the PCANZ Ministry review training team has developed a workshop based on the principles espoused by the Arbinger Institute. These concepts along with other material has been used to develop a skills based approach to managing change, conflict, and day to day encounters with people.

Annette trained as a PCANZ Minister, has a PhD in Psychology, and has been involved in mental health education at the University of Otago. She is currently working as a Psychologist privately, and at Columbia College; has published in the areas of gender and language, communication and Emotional Intelligence; has always been actively involved in the life of the church as a Elder and has served on the PCANZ Leadership Sub Committee.

WORKSHOP

Developing a sense of corporate identity and maintaining good relationships within a parish setting is vital for the church's witness and effectiveness in society. This seminar will give leaders and others skills in this area and help them analyse troublesome points of conflict and difficult issues in a manner which will enable resolution with dignity for all parties.

Want to be liberated from self-justifying thoughts and find more peace with yourselves, others, and God the source of our humanity?

This course will help you explore and unpack these issues leading to healthier, more productive, and mutually satisfying relationships and spirituality. This seminar will model and provide practical skills to deal with change and conflict.

RECOMMENDATIONS

This material is amazing in its ability to resolve some conflict we were having in the church and the tools are so applicable to Marriage and family or relationships at work. I see it as Christianity lived out – Seeing people as Jesus saw them, being responsive to the Spirit, dealing with our need to justify ourselves, blame others and our often unconscious self-deception. I cannot recommend this material highly enough.”

Rev Brett Walker

Having read the Arbinger material I believe that if those involved in leadership in our Churches were to understand and practice these principles our church communities would be transformed.

Rev Dr Kevin Ward

In my personal and spiritual growth and dealing with everyday situations, this seminar is just what I needed”
