A unique opportunity...

If the church in New Zealand is to find the energy and direction it needs for mission, it needs preachers who, in the words of N.T Wright, 'can open the Bible in the power of the Spirit'. Through its innovative approach to training, Langham Preaching seminars are helping preachers do just that all around the majority world. And now, for the first time, this training is available for preachers in New Zealand.

There are several elements that set this training apart from anything else on offer in New Zealand:

- practical - the focus is on teaching and modelling a set of core preaching skills
- interactive - participants get to apply this teaching and practice these skills with constructive feedback during the week
- residential - there is plenty of time for conversation and encouragement from other preachers

This seminar offers something for everyone, from the emerging preacher with no formal training, through to the established preacher who wants to refresh their preaching. It would be ideal for building your church's preaching team. Bring your team, or someone else from your church, and get a massive discount!

An outstanding presenter...

The presenter will be Paul Windsor. Paul is the Associate Director of Langham Preaching. He has taught preaching for over twenty years, first as a lecturer at Laidlaw College and then as principal of Carey Baptist College. Paul is widely regarded as the leading trainer of preachers in New Zealand and the Pacific today. He will be assisted by three Kiwi Langham Preaching trainers: Geoff New (Director, Kiwi-Made Preaching; Senior Pastor, Papakura East Presbyterian Church), Andy Shudall (Head of Strategic Development, TSCF; Elder, Eastgate Christian Centre), and John Tucker (Director, Ministry Training, Carey Baptist College; Elder, Windsor Park Baptist Church).

A balanced programme...

The 2013 seminar, which will run from late afternoon on Monday, 15 April, to lunchtime on Friday, 19 April, consists of three crucial elements. In the mornings Paul will teach on topics like 'observing and understanding the Bible passage', 'moving from text to sermon', 'making the connection' and 'applying the sermon'. In the afternoons participants will practice the skills they've been taught through a combination of personal study on a set passage, small group work and feedback. In the evenings, these skills will be modelled through a sermon on that passage by one of the trainers.

A beautiful location...

The venue will be the Capernwray base just five minutes drive south of Cambridge in the heart of the Waikato (3553 Cambridge Rd). With its historic homestead and beautiful gardens, this is the ideal setting for a residential seminar.

An incredible price...

With generous support from the Carey School of Preaching, this seminar is being offered at the subsidised price of just $330 per person. Bring someone else from your church and you will each only pay $250! This covers accommodation, meals for four days, and all supplied materials.

“When I was first exposed to this seminar I lamented why it was not being offered to New Zealand preachers! I never expected that it would be. My lament has now become rejoicing! The content is that good”

Geoff New

‘I’ve seen the Langham model rejuvenate preachers who’ve been in ministry longer than I’ve been alive and I’ve seen young preachers equipped, enabled and excited in preaching by exactly the same material. As we approach the bicentennial of the preaching of the gospel in New Zealand, it’s exciting that we’re focussing on preaching the gospel to a new generation.’

Andy Shudall

“This is a wonderful opportunity, and possibly the only time we’ll get to see Paul Windsor provide this training in New Zealand. If I were a pastor, I’d be there - and I’d take the members of my preaching team with me!”

John Tucker
